The
Groucho
Club

The Club History

In 1985, frustrated at the absence of a Club which women could freely use, some of the brightest minds in publishing put their heads together and those anarchic rebellious women decided to simply open their own - and it was from this maverick enterprise that the Groucho Club was born.

Intended as a haven for the creative of soul and kindred of spirit, the Groucho quickly became a place of inspired sociability and subtle notoriety, and this legacy continues to imbue the character of the Club today. Exclusivity is required of a members' club, yet due to the nature of its founding, the Groucho has always been characterised by an intimate, warm inclusivity - reflecting the true individuality of its membership.

Grouching in Dean Street

ONCE UPON a time clubs were called after chocolate-house owners or valets—White's or Pratt's. That's too simple for nowadays. Yesterday, much touted and somewhat delayed, the opening at last took place of the latest addition to London's clubland, a n boite with the wonderful unselfconscious name Groucho's (geddit?).

Like Mrs Smarty, gave a party (and it came), the club got a sticky start. None glitterati members up for the opening fast. Things picked lunchtime when Boxer arrived. Evening saw Fran (soon to have his hibition at the 7 Per Conran. Keven Andre Dev

The Events Spaces

Our private event rooms, each with their own collection of contemporary art, are flexible and effortlessly stylish. The Groucho Club is the exceptional destination for special events. Our devoted and efficient staff can accommodate almost any configuration from an intimate private dinner, meeting or launch to a roaring party for two hundred guests. Nestled impressively in the heart of Soho, The Club is renowned for its stunning contemporary art collection which forms a sophisticated backdrop to any event. We even have 17 bedrooms should you and your guests wish to stay. Non-members are welcome to book private events and a temporary membership will be made for the duration of your event.

The Second Floor

The second floor is perfect for a large party and features a mirrored bar, wooden floors and an open flexible space. Combining The Gennaro Room, Carter Room and Mackintosh Rooms, the large space can hold up to 80 people seated or 100 standing. Our head chef Erion Karaj has created exquisite menus which will be sure to impress your guests.
